

DEALING WITH CONFLICT OF INTEREST

Overview

It is common for public duties to conflict with private interests when working in the public sector and local government. Join colleagues to unpack a public sector specific understanding of conflict of interest and why it is crucial for all levels of government to handle these matters well. Our interactive workshop uses scenarios to illustrate a simple approach to identifying and dealing with conflicts of interest. It also explores good practice approaches to recording and managing these conflicts.

Who should attend

Managers, governance officers, team leaders, public sector and local government employees and anyone responsible for managing conflicts of interest.

Benefits from attending

Drawing from the Victorian Public Sector Commission's resources, local government guidance and the Victorian Ombudsman's experience, you will better understand how to:

- create or strengthen your practices in identifying, declaring and managing conflicts of interest
- determine what is and what is not a conflict of interest
- understand and avoid the common mistakes
- identify and deal with barriers to managing conflicts of interest in your organisation.
